

DENIES MURDER, SAYS A BROTHER IS MAN WANTED

But Former Sweetheart
from Chicago Positively Identifies Constantino.

PRISONER IS NERVOUS.

Admits He Took His Brother's
Name When Sent to Elmira Reformatory.

POUGHKEEPSIE, July 25.—Frank J. Constantino, under arrest here for the brutal murder of Mrs. Louise Gentry in Chicago last January, protests over and over again that he is the victim of a case recently made his brother's. It is his brother, he says, whose name is Frank. He was christened Fritz, he declares, but took his brother's name when he was sent to Elmira reformatory. His mother, who lives in New York, says this remarkable statement is true, but Constantino has been positively identified by a former sweetheart from Chicago as Mrs. Gentry's alleged slayer, and he is to be taken back to Illinois for trial at once.

Said "That's the Man."
Miss Schreiber, as she styles herself, is about twenty years of age, having regular features and a pleasant, smiling face.

When taken to Constantino's cell she gave a glance at him, and, turning to Deputy Sheriff Hoffman, remarked confidently "That is the man." Reflecting a moment, while Constantino smiled at her face wearing a black and ugly look, she added with perfect self-possession: "I would know the man without seeing his face by his walk."

The prisoner had several days' growth of beard on his chin, and Sheriff Hoffman had the prison barber shave him and again presented him to Miss Schreiber, who exclaimed:
"That's the man! I would know him in a thousand."

The identification was so positive that Deputy Sheriff Hoffman wired the result to Super. Collins at Chicago and received a reply that an officer would be sent on as soon as extradition papers could be taken out.

Constantino, whose relatives keep a little retail grocery in Little Italy, Harlem, posed in Chicago as the son of a rich New York family. He had been a boarder in Chicago with a family named Gentry and had borrowed money from Mrs. Louise Gentry. She is said to have insisted upon repayment. On Jan. 8, last, it is alleged, he cut her throat with a razor, nearly cutting her head off. The search for him has been kept up all over the country.

Mrs. Rosina Constantino, who keeps the grocery store at No. 29 East One Hundred and Eleventh street, said last night that the Poughkeepsie police had made a mistake and arrested the wrong boy. She says she has not seen the other son since last October.

John D.'s Book—Cazzazagraph Reports of Oil King's Record of His Impressions of Europe

How a Short-Changer Was Bailed and How Bargains in Wine Were Lost.

John D. Rockefeller has written a book in which he records his impressions of Europe. At a vast expenditure of Confederate money The Evening World has secured by cazzazagraph extra from the advance sheets from the publishers. The Evening World does not guarantee the accuracy of the impressions of Mr. Rockefeller set forth here. However, it may be remarked that if what Mr. Rockefeller really writes is as bright, entertaining and otherwise enjoyable as the cazzazagraph reports of what he wrote he ought to be happy even if there is a Sheriff from Findlay, O., waiting to arrest him when he reaches New York next week.

The first chapter of Mr. Rockefeller's book treats of Europe generally and is quite local, considering that the distinguished author was not outside of France. If you are interested, read it following:

CHAPTER I.
The per capita wealth of the people of Europe is not as high as that of the people of the United States. I am told that in Europe it is possible to get efficient labor for 50 cents a day. The people of Europe work long hours and are happy.

I am deeply gratified to note that the French people do not go to baseball games on Sundays.
The per capita wealth of the people of Europe is not as high as that of the people of the United States. I am told that in Europe it is possible to get efficient labor for 50 cents a day. The people of Europe work long hours and are happy.

The French peasants are fine, strong people. Their living expenses are low. It would be well for our American laboring classes to study the French peasant and learn how to live cheaply on small wages and put something in the bank besides.

Short Changer Bailed.
A waiter in Cherbourg tried to short change me out of five francs, but I added up the check carefully and detected him. In his nervous act, consequently instead of inquiring about the health of his family in lieu of a tip I did not speak to him, at all as I was leaving the table.

Wine is very cheap in France, but as I do not drink wine I have been unable to save any money in that direction.
The hotels I have encountered are far below our American hotels in point of accommodations, but they do not cost as much. Thus far I have failed to encounter anything as well as the Hotel de Ville.

The people in Europe are very inquisitive. They seem to think that every moneyed man who comes to France from Paris asking me to buy a balloon.

Living is cheap and of good quality. Women wear very gaudy colors. The French peasants wear blouses, which I consider a very comfortable garment. If a man makes up his mind he is going to wear a blouse all his life he will never aspire to the ownership of an automobile.

French people take great interest in politics, but I know nothing about our political system in the United States, where the people think that the only way to get things done is by voting for a man.

Careful computation shows me that it costs more to travel in Europe than in the United States, but that no negro porters there to bat your clothes with a whisk-broom and hold you up two bits at the end of your journey.

He Buys Post-Cards.
Inexpensive but artistic souvenir post-cards may be obtained at every stopping place in Europe. Have bought several for transmission to my friends in America. Some of them I have exposed for sale in Paris would make Anthony Comstock jump over the Eiffel Tower.

The Y. M. C. A. King's Daughters, P. O. and other church organizations do not flourish in France. I fear that this is not a religious country. There are very few Baptists.

A newspaper reporter in Paris offered me $100 for a fifteen-minute interview. He said, "My paper has a big story on you down without putting the proposition to me. Do I agree to it?" I refused. I am a source of great gain to me.

The roads in France are fine for automobile and bicycling. I haven't finished my first bicycle ride in Compiegne before I was held up for a license that cost me over 20 cents.

DREYFUS WAS NOT SLAPPED IN CLUB.

PARIS, July 25.—An official denial was issued to-day regarding the rumor that Major Dreyfus had been assaulted yesterday by a brother officer at the Military Club. The official statement says: "A denial of the most formal kind is authorized concerning the incident which it is rumored occurred last night at the Military Club during a dinner at which Major Dreyfus was present. The facts are as follows:

"According to custom the officers of the First Cavalry Division gave a dinner to two newly appointed lieutenants, and the Minister of War authorized the officers' wives to attend. The dinner occurred and was marked throughout by animated sentiments of the most perfect good fellowship. The officers separated toward 9:30 P. M. without the occurrence of anything which gave rise to the rumor put in circulation."

In an interview Major Dreyfus declared that he was absolutely astonished at the rumored incident, which was an invention throughout.

Europe are low, but sure. The American tendency to pay high salaries to public servants of the most perfect good fellowship. The officers separated toward 9:30 P. M. without the occurrence of anything which gave rise to the rumor put in circulation."
